

Dr. Mitchel Roslin

Chief of Bariatric and Metabolic Surgery
Lenox Hill Hospital
Northern Westchester Hospital Center
NY, USA

Bariatric and Metabolic Surgery at Lenox Hill Hospital, NY, USA
Northern Westchester Hospital Center, NY, USA
Barbara and Donald Zucker School of Medicine at Hofstra/Northwell., NY, USA

Dr. Roslin is the chief of Bariatric and Metabolic Surgery at Lenox Hill Hospital and Northern Westchester Hospital Center. He is a professor of surgery at the Barbara and Donald Zucker School of Medicine at Hofstra/Northwell.

Dr. Roslin did his undergraduate studies at the University of Pennsylvania, and attended medical school at New York University. He completed his surgical residency at The Maimonides Medical Center. He became Chief of Bariatric Surgery at Lenox Hill Hospital in 2000.

Dr. Roslin has lectured throughout the world and is well known for his work on pyloric preservation and the potential importance of glycemic variability in bariatric procedures. He holds several patents in the field and has published extensively. He has performed surgery in many international countries that include, Spain, Italy, Turkey, Israel, Bahrain, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, United Arab Emirates and Mexico.